Welcome to the inaugural meeting of the Melbourne branch of the Society of Underwater Technology. Building on foundations of the society that stretches back 40 years, Melbourne joins a worldwide organization that promotes responsible, sustainable development of the world's most unexplored region. Our aims are to promote science and technology across a broad range of disciplines and underwater stakeholders to cross fertilize ideas and understanding that will lead to creative development. This evening will bring together people of the subsea world and present overviews of the wealth of oceans and mankind's endeavours to explore and benefit from this magnificent environment.

Oceans of Adventure – The Subsea Playground

Martyn Witton: Subsea Manager, INPEX Corporation

Since the earliest days people have realised the benefits of the seas for food, transportation and fun. The desire to explore and understand this abundant environment, from which life originally came, has led to beneficial development of undersea resources. This presentation addresses the growing importance of subsea technology to our modern world, while reflecting on the pioneers of the subsea industry and the potential future prizes and challenges.

Subsea Systems

Brian Threlfall, Regional Manager, Cameron Australasia Pty Ltd.

Cameron is a leading supplier of subsea equipment. This presentation will give an overview of subsea systems, comprising wellheads, subsea tree's, manifolds, connections, controls and the all electric subsea tree.
